

Unreliable Witnesses
By Lisa Gillespie

Characters:

1st Detective:

2nd Detective:

Girl Victim #1:

Girl Victim #2:

Intruder:

Uniformed Police Officer/Narrator:

Narrator: The Scene - The police have been called to the apartment home of two sisters. It is a Sunday afternoon and the girls have entered their home only to be surprised by an intruder. The intruder flees with his stolen loot and they have called the police to report the crime. We join the scene already in progress.....

1st Det: So, what have we got?

2nd Det: Well, it should be a pretty open and shut case.

1st Det: So why the long face?

2nd Det: Unreliable witnesses.

1st Det: So what else is new? No one saw anything. No one knows anything. No one wants to get involved. Am I right?

2nd Det: You got it. Let me fill ya in.....two gals over here came home and got a little surprise. Room was tossed. Saw the perp exiting through the window over there.

1st Det: What was taken?

2nd Det: The usual....jewelry, Ipad, CDs, some cash....just what he could carry – especially since he was interrupted. He was only going for stuff he could sell on the street.

1st Det: Looking to score his drug of choice and fast. Did the call go out?

2nd Det: Yep. Unit over on 8th picked him up and are en route to see if our vics can make a positive identification.

1st Det: Well, let's see what we can find out.

2nd Det: Lead the way. (they cross over to the girls who are sitting)

1st Det: So, Ladies. Does one of you feel like telling us what happened?